Splashy water fun at Europa-Park

It's all about water on the new children's water playground in Europa-Park's Icelandic themed area! Little water bugs can splash around to the top of their bent in "Lítill Island – Hansgrohe Water Playground" and experience the splashy side of water, while their parents enjoy some relaxed moments from a dry distance. On an area of 700 m², the water playground, which was designed in cooperation with the international fixture and shower manufacturing specialist Hansgrohe AG (Schiltach/Black Forest/Germany), also offers a "Discoverers' Cave", where little visitors can get plenty of useful information about water in a playful way.

From now on, little water bugs can romp around and discover the cool element water in the new children's attraction "Lítill Island – Hansgrohe Water Playground". Between Portugal and the new family water ride "Whale Adventures – Splash Tours", the spacious blue water playground invites especially the youngest visitors to get useful information about water and learn how to use the elixir of life in a responsible way. By opening and closing taps and shower heads, little water experts can even coordinate the flow direction of the water themselves. Moreover, they can pump water or climb on the wooden tower in order to reach the fun slide that takes them back down to the ground again.

While the little ones are enjoying some splashy fun when wading through the shallow water, all adults can take a break in one of the beach chairs nearby, where they can always have an eye on their children. While the shower heads and taps, that have been designed especially for the water playground, are glistening in the summer sun, the water experts-to-be can discover and check out ingenious technologies used for Hansgrohe shower heads.
